“ One day when our girls were little, we were on our way shopping. We were making a left turn there at the cemetery, when this man ran a red light and broadsided us. He was going so fast, he knocked my little Datsun clear across the road. I was stunned, but Linda looked in the back seat at our girls and saw blood coming from Tina's mouth. The old mother hen protecting her chicks came out. She got out of the car, and she began beating that man with her fist. By God's grace no one was hurt beyond a busted lips and sore bodies. But you don't hurt one of ours and get away unscathed. One of many memories. God how I will miss her. My love and prayer with you all. I'm sorry I cannot be with you. Sis
