“ I am so saddened and sorry to hear about Aunt Beulah. She was truly the matriarch of the Waugh family and we will cherish the memories we have of her. I will never forget her courage of traveling to see my father/her brother as he was passing and getting to hear her sing to him in his final days. Love and prayers to you all and know that I will be thinking of you all.
Love, Sandy Waugh

“ I'm sharing your sorrow. Anyone who knew Beulah knows how difficult this time is. A person has to find their way through the grief with the assurance that she's no longer suffering. My last memories of Beulah are precious. I found her to be the first in line to attend the gospel singing and I'll never forget her passion singing "One glad morning when this life is over I'll fly away". Days later she was crocheting with some difficult yarn and was determined to "Get it right!" And that was my friend Beulah. Passionate and determined to get it right. She was a person who if you didn't get to know her you'd really missed out. She loved us. She was of a generation when times were tough but the people were tougher. She came from a generation of people that made a difference in the lives of their families and this country and your word or promise was kept. She was genuine and authentic. No pretense. She loved us. And she was a friend to me. She was an artist. Full of creativity. She has sewn countless hems and costumes. She loved us. She's created quilts and afghans. She loved to take drives, but preferred to do the driving! An iron skillet was a good thing to have around. Fried green tomatoes are a good thing! She loved us. She has whipped up a country breakfast in a snap and shared recipes for goodies that are shared across the United States. Her pickles are the best! She has wiped a tear, she has held a hand. She loved us. She has made herself available when most went running. She loved a good conversation and a hot cup of coffee and biscuits and sausage gravy from that little booth in the front of McDonalds. She never met a pineapple milkshake she couldn't enjoy! And she loved to read. She shared her love and concern for her family. She shared her grief during the loss of Arthur, Cody and her empty nest. And she has shared the joys of new great and great great grandbabies. She was strong. She was determined. She loved and shared and gave beyond our deserving. She shared her life well lived with all of us and we will miss her. We've been honored with her presence. And we are thankful.

“ Michael,
I am so sorry to hear about the passing of your grandmother. She was truly a wonderful woman, and I think of her often. We still have the afghans she made for us, and use them every winter. They will now be even more precious to us. Please take care of yourself and your mom. I am so happy I knew your wonderful grandma, Nanny. We will keep you all in our thoughts and prayers.
