“ Well, it's been 10 months since my world came crashing down around me.

Ten long months have passed.

I'll never forget the day.

I sat right next to you. The second you slipped away. The hurt is the same as the day you left me. The pain is like an open wound. There are days

I don't utter a sound. I've shut my private door and let no one in.

Locking myself in a box. It's just my pain and us. They try, but I just cant let them in.

Some days the pain is stronger.

It makes me sick and weak.

I can't stand this much longer.

I just want to sit here and weep.

I can't because of my guilt. I deserve this pain of my loss. God knows that this pain has came with such a great loss.

You were my rock,

Strong, faithful and true.

What worth has my life

Now that I don't have you?

I was your first born,

Daddy's little girl.

I took my own path

But was still part of your world.

I was not the best,

Guilty of neglect,

But you know, Daddy dearest,

I have so much respect.

I love you now just as I did back then.

I am so proud of you.

Brave and strong to the end.

Now when asked, "How are you?"

There is no need to pretend. I am torn apart by my sin.

“ A Tribute To the Doles Curse

Dad never did quite explain the Doles curse. He would just smile and say, "Yep, that's the Doles Curse for ya." Well over the years I've come to understand just what that is. It's not something that just dad and my husband have but I have seen that each and every Doles man I've come to know embodies this too. Without question its the good looks and charm ! But it's also their compassion, love beyond all measure, strength, bravery and courage where it counts. Its their ability to stand strong and provide support. Its their willingness to provide for their families. Its their tenderness and soft hearts. I have been deeply honored to know and love the Doles men and dad... I will do all that I can to make sure our children carry this curse just as beautifully as you did! I love you dad!
