“ When our parents got married, i was given something i had never had before. I was given brothers and I got more sisters of course. I had never had Brothers. When we first became a family, there was eight people sharing a 3 bedroom trailer in Killeen Texas. Us 4 boys were given the bigger room in the front of the Trailer. We got two sets of older wooden military bunk beds. Ray and I had gotten the top bunks because we were younger. Larry and David got the bottom. I remember, one evening as we were going to bed we started horsing around. In the process the Top bunk of the bed i was on fell on top of David. Ann and Dad came running because of the noise and Larry was laughing so hard. I thought we were in for it. Dad was a hard nose when i was younger but, he took a boys will be boys kinda attitude with this. To me that was confusing. I remember thinking, how awesome it was to have brothers because you had someone to grow up with, to get in trouble with and you didn't seem to get in so much trouble for breaking stuff as you did when alone. I was right, it was awesome. I was second youngest, followed only by Ray. Sure, being younger you got yelled at, made fun of and picked on and looking back now i loved it all. I know Larry and I only spoke a few times since becoming adults, but when we did it was like not a minute had passed from when we were kids. My thoughts and prayers go out to Robin, the Girls and the two Grandbabies.
